Multicultural fest on West Cap

The West Sacramento Multicultural Fair appeared to draw a happy crowd on Saturday afternoon across from city hall.

Gabrielle Callison, organizer of the fair, represents the West Sacramento Family Literacy Coalition (WSFLC), which sponsored the event.

"The WSFLC in cooperation with the City of West Sacramento Parks & Recreation wanted to draw residents to the new downtown civic area and the Community Center," said Callison in an email afterward.

The community center held an open house nearby during the same hours as the fair.

"There seemed to be a lot of different cultures represented among the fair visitors," she added. "As far as performers and vendors, we had represented the Slavic, Mexican and Portuguese communities. We think a couple hundred people attended. I don't know if the fair will return next year, but I sure hope so!"

Getaway hits a few snags

Things just kept going downhill for a man allegedly trying to steal some recyclable metal from a Cebrian Street business last week.

According to police reports, the thief entered the 24-hour facility at about 1 a.m. on Friday morning, and started putting copper tubing into his light blue Chevrolet pickup truck. But an employee spotted him, and started to lock the facility's gate to trap the man while police were summoned.

The suspect got into the pickup and "accelerated the Chevy into the closed portion of the gate, breaking the gate" and nearly hitting the employee, said an officer's report.

"The gate became attached to the bottom of the Chevy as it fled north on Cebrian Street, then westbound on Del Monte." One of its tires was also punctured as it fled through the gate.

The suspect then abandoned the damaged truck – with just a couple of pieces of stolen pipe in it – about a half mile from the business, on Shore Street. Officers converged for a search, and a helicopter responded to help. They didn't initially find him.

Then, according to Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department, they got a lead. The hiding suspect apparently had called his brother to come pick him up, describing to his brother the spot in the bushes where he was hidingnear Port and Shore streets. Police talked to the brother when he arrived.

"The brother came in and helped identify where the suspect was," said Sockman.

Arrested was Comse Aldaco, 33, of Sacramento.

New 'town hall' website for West Sac

The News-Ledger today announces the launch of a new online "town hall" site for the West Sacramento community.

The site is located at www.WestSac.com. It includes a sampling of local news and photos from the News-Ledger, as well as links to local news from other online sources, an online community calendar, and a community discussion forum.

"This is the first phase of something that's pretty ambitious," said Steve Marschke, News-Ledger Publisher/Editor. "The town has a need for a central information exchange, and WestSac.com is intended to be that place. As the major local news provider, we've got the original news content and the community connections to do this, and to do it right."

The website is built by West Sacramento web developer Eric Harding.

It's a free website. Anyone can browse it. But to leave a public comment at the site, users will be required to sign in and use their names. This policy is designed to help make sure users are responsible and civil, according to the site's guidelines.

People can browse anonymously. If they want to post something on the site, they can either create a WestSac.com ID or use their Facebook ID to log in.

There are new features planned for WestSac.com in coming months, and the site will also listen to suggestions from the public, said Marschke.

"It will get a lot bigger and better as each year goes by. This is not a build-it-and-forget-it project."

The News-Ledger has long held a presence on the web, with a basic website at www.news-ledger.com and a Facebook page. That newspaper's website is headed for an upgrade – but for the moment, the work is taking a back seat to creation of the "town hall" site at WestSac.com.

"In the long run, these two 'sister' sites will be complementary," said Marschke. "WestSac.com will always be free, and it will have a wide variety of stuff, including some of our reporting, as well as community-generated news, comments and photos. Meanwhile, the News-Ledger website will concentrate on providing our own local journalism. Eventually, people will be able to subscribe to a complete online version of the newspaper there."

There are no plans to phase out the print edition of the newspaper, News-Ledger management said.

"More newspaper readers are getting their news online," said Marschke. "We need to recognize that. But we also know that a lot of people simply prefer to read from the printed page."

Accused of stealing 300 iPhones

Two workers at the U.S. Postal Service's mail processing facility on Industrial Boulevard have been indicted for charges relating to the alleged theft of hundreds of AT&T iPhone cell phones.

United States Attorney Benjamin B. Wagner announced Sept. 22 that a federal grand jury returned a 61-count indictment today charging Saravy Yem, 27, of Stockton, and Angel Pantoja-Lopez, 27, of North Highlands, with conspiracy to steal mail and mail theft by postal service employees.

According to court documents, Yem and Pantoja-Lopez worked at the West Sacramento processing and distribution center, sorting and processing mail. The complaint alleges that Yem and Pantoja-Lopez would open parcels containing AT&T iPhones, hide the iPhones on their persons or clothing, and dispose of the empty parcels amid other USPS equipment.

According to court documents, investigators collected about 300 empty AT&T iPhone parcels at the West Sacramento facility.

This case is the product of an investigation by the U.S. Postal Service's Office of Inspector General. Assistant United States Attorney Camil A. Skipper is prosecuting the case.

If convicted, the defendants face a maximum statutory penalty of five years in prison for each theft, said U.S. Attorney Wagner, although many variables would be considered by the court.

Farmers market: 'near-zero waste'

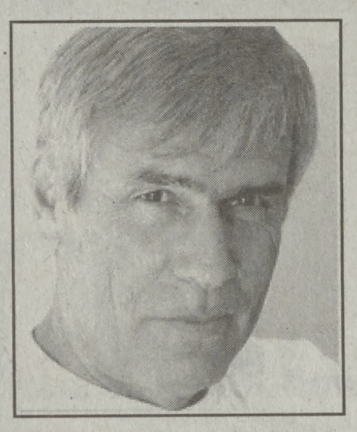
The inaugural season of the West Sacramento Farmers Market came pretty close to meeting its goal of producing no waste for the county landfill, according to Waste Management, the city's garbage and recycling handler.

"The final results from the overall event are in, and Waste Management is proud to report that more than 97 percent of the waste generated at the market was diverted from local landfills," said a company statement. "The majority of the material was composted, and most of the remaining material was recycled, leaving very little waste."

The market was organized by the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, and held on West Capitol Avenue on Thursday evenings during the summer. The Chamber asked market vendors to bring only recyclable or compostable versions of disposable materials, such as produce bags and eating utensils.

The real perils of gambling

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

My first introduction to the evils of gambling took place way back in 1967 when I was only 19 years old and a proud member of an off-campus fraternity at Sacramento City College called Phi Beta Chi. In addition to being a very rowdy fraternity that would have rivaled the one in the movie Animal House in terms of partying and disrespect for authority, it was also the home of some of the very best young gamblers in the entire City of Sacramento.

The fraternity house itself was located on 26th and Q Streets in downtown Sacramento and it looked a lot like one of those old rundown Victorian homes you would see in an Alfred Hitchcock movie. It had 44 members during the year I was in it, and I can't remember more than a few of them being a dedicated student who took his classes and homework seriously, including me. In fact, it took a herculean effort just to make it to my classes most mornings because like many of my fraternity brothers, I stayed up late most every night playing poker. And much to my surprise, I got pretty good at it.

Although we only played nickel-dime-quarter draw poker back in those days, the pots could get pretty big and I suddenly found myself on a winning streak that seemed to go on for months. And by adding my poker winnings to the weekly checks I was getting for working 24 hours at Lucky Markets as a grocery checker, my savings account was suddenly overflowing. So off I marched to my father to inform him that I had decided to buy myself a brand new car, and would he come with me to pick one out and co-sign for it.

"Just how are you going to pay for a brand new car and all your college expenses on the money you're making at the grocery store?" he demanded to know.

"I got a big raise," I lied to him, not wanting to tell him that I would have no problem paying a monthly car payment because I was now rolling in the money I was winning most every night at the fraternity house.

So, being the loving dad he always was, off my father went with me to pick out the car of my dreams, a brand new 1967 baby-blue Chevy Malibu with a four-on-the-floor transmission and fancy bucket seats. And the first thought that went through my head the moment I saw it sitting there under all those shiny lights at the car dealership was that my love life would definitely be taking a turn for the better! I was absolutely sure that pretty girls everywhere would take one look at my new Chevy Malibu and start fighting to see who would be the lucky one to go for a ride with me!

In 1967, you could get a new Chevy Malibu for about $2,200, although that was a lot of money back then. And after hours of haggling with a not-very-nice car salesman my dad finally cut a deal with him that got me my new car for a couple of hundred dollars down and $78 a month. Life was good! But less than three months later, everything of course came crashing down. Not only did my poker winning streak at the fraternity house come to a screeching halt, but I actually started a losing streak that never seemed like it was going to end. So, reluctantly coming to the conclusion that I could no longer make my car payment, back I marched to my dad to tell him the truth and to also get his advice on how I could get myself out of the whole mess.

He began by giving me the standard lecture about what an idiot I could be at times, and then he went into great detail about how only two things can happen when you gamble, and that they're both bad.

"Either you lose all your own hard-earned money, or you win money that you never did anything to deserve," explained my father, "so unless you're just doing it for a few hours of fun and can afford to lose the money you're going to end up throwing away, stay away from gambling!"

"But what am I going to do about my Malibu?" I asked, trying to bring the conversation back to how I was going to stay out of the poorhouse.

"You're going to sell it," said my father matter-of-factly, quickly ending any hope I had of him bailing me out and helping me with the payments for awhile until I could get back on another winning streak. "And you're going to do it tomorrow!"

"But Dad," I tried to explain, "I finally got Catherine Martin (not her real name) to go out with me and she's expecting me to show up at her house in my new Malibu next Saturday night."

"I don't care if you finally got Marilyn Monroe to go out with you, if you can't make your payments, you're going to sell that *%^#$ car!"

"But how do I do that?"

"Very simple. You just put a classified ad in the Sacramento Bee first thing tomorrow morning and just say that anyone can have the *%^#$ thing who is willing to take over the payments."

"But that will mean I won't get back my down payment or all the money I've already put into it."

"That is called learning a lesson!" my dad said with emphasis as he turned and stormed away.

So, to all you young gamblers out there (and I'm particularly thinking of my youngest son who loves to play Texas hold 'em at the local casinos and thinks he's the Cincinnati Kid), just remember you may end up like me, driving an old clunker over to pick up the Catherine Martin of your dreams on your very last date with her!

Like many of my fraternity brothers, I stayed up late most every night playing poker. And much to my surprise, I got pretty good at it.

NOTICE
(916) 371-4535

To be fair to those families using our services and their need for parking, we are now requiring that any person or organization wanting to use our parking lot for an event at the VFW, call us directly and make an appointment to discuss their needs. River Cities Funeral Chapel will then assist with coordination between the VFW and us.

For 32 years, the Daniel Family, owners of the funeral home and the parking lot, have tried to find a balance between the VFW's use of our lot and the needs of the families contracting with us for our services. As our City grows, this balance is becoming more difficult.

One option we have considered is to simply close the parking lot off completely and make it available for River Cities use only. As of now, we are working hard to avoid that situation. If it does come to that, we hope you can understand that our loyalty is to you and those families that we have faithfully served in the past and hope to continue to serve in the future.

We want to thank you for your past and continued support.

The Daniel Family

On Friday, the 4-1 River City High School Raiders (4-1) took their teams to Folsom to face Vista del Lago.

The JV Raiders won their game by a final of 26-12.

The Varsity game was thought to have playoff implications, as both Vista and River City came into the game undefeated in division play.

River City stopped Vista's opening drive with a goal line stance and intercepted the ball in the end zone. River City then drove the ball down field to score the first touchdown in the game with a short run by Uriah Clark. But Vista soon answered back and dominated the rest of the game.

Vista won the game by a final score of 41-14. Vista held River City to just 14 points, one touchdown scored by Clark and one by Adam Tyson.

River City JV improves their overall record to 5-1; while the Varsity drops to 4-2. The teams will travel to Liberty Ranch on Friday, October 7, 2011.

A Lake Road restaurant said two people had dined with separate checks. One of them didn't pay the $24.80 tab – and the restaurant suspected it was unintentional, and not theft.

Oct. 1, 10:23 p.m.
An officer saw a Mercury Tracer going about 65 miles per hour in a 35-m.p.h. zone near Sacramento and Bryte avenues. The officer pulled the car over. The male driver had bloodshot eyes and smelled of alcohol and marijuana. He was unable to complete the field sobriety test, and when asked if he had any physical problems, he volunteered, "I have flat feet." He also admitted, "I was drinking at the bar and I smoked some marijuana." He was arrested.

Tomatoes are still 'king of crops' in Yolo; ag production down 4%

From the County of Yolo

On Tuesday, the Yolo County Board of Supervisors received the 2010 Yolo County Agricultural Report – an annual report which summarizes the acreage, production and gross valuation of all agricultural commodities produced in Yolo County in 2010. The total gross valuation for all agricultural commodities in 2010 was $443,541,692 which represents a decrease of 4% from the 2009 crop values.

"These production figures only partially reflect the overall measure of the economic impact agriculture has on Yolo County's economy," said Yolo County Supervisor Duane Chamberlain in a press release. "Field labor, processing, transporting, marketing and other farm-related services significantly multiply the value agriculture has to our county. When the multiplier effect of related industries is considered, agriculture contributes well over $1.5 billion to the economy of Yolo County."

Processing tomatoes, which have been Yolo County's "King of Crops" for 50 years, remained the county's leading commodity at a value of $87,920,291 despite a 31% decline due to decreased acreage, lower gross production per acre, and a reduction in price per ton as a result of increased production in southern growing regions which had been impacted by prior year water shortages, said a county spokesperson.

Rice production, Yolo County's number two crop, increased 5% as water restrictions in the western region of the county were lifted, allowing for the return of planting in that area. Wine grape values, Yolo County's number three crop, dropped 19% primarily due to increased inventories in a weak economy. Hay, organic production, walnuts, almonds, corn, wheat, and cattle and calves rounded out the top ten crops for 2010

For more information on the acreage, production and gross valuation of agricultural commodities produced in Yolo County in 2010, visit: www.yolocounty.org (go to Government > Agriculture & Cooperative Extension > Agriculture and Weights & Measures) or contact the Yolo County Agriculture Department at (530) 666-8140.

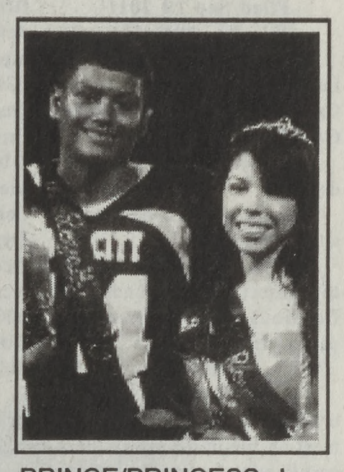
HOMECOMING: a report from River City High School

By Sam Urrea, Staff Writer
RCHS School Newspaper,
"Ou[RC}ity News"

It is the start of the school year. Students struggle to find activities that they can begin looking forward to. Football season is just starting, yet some students continue to dwell on the realization that summer has just departed. That is, however, until homecoming time comes along. This year was no different at River City High School.

This year's homecoming excitement started out with the traditional celebration of spirit week. Students showed their passion and togetherness for the school as well as their respective grade by following the school curriculum of dressing up as something different each day of the week prior to the dance the subsequent Saturday.

KING & QUEEN: Andrew Rodriguez & Elysia Sevilla



PRINCE/PRINCESS: Juan Lazcano, Angelica Carter

Students from every class were nominated and voted on throughout the week to decide who the school would choose as their homecoming count, countess, duke, duchess, prince, princess and lastly king and queen.

The big announcements were made during the halftime show of the River City vs. El Dorado football game, an encounter dominated by the home team, from start to finish, which ended with the score of 65-12. The passion shown by the players on the field was reflected on the happiness of the attending students, parents and staff.

River City local Kyra Dixon believes she knows exactly why the homecoming game brings out that spirit and passion shared throughout the event more than any other football occasion in the school calendar.

"The game is just so fun. You get to see who won the royalty nominations and hang out with your friends in a happy environment. I also see a lot of people I usually don't see anywhere else, so you can tell it is an event not many people want to miss out on," she explained.

Student Jimmy Landis confessed he is not a regular attendant of school-related affairs and pinpointed family tradition as the reason for attending the game.

"I never really attend any school events that happen outside of school. But the homecoming game is tradition for my family because my dad went to River City, so we usually come every year," he said.

He also believes that seeing the school so united in promoting these events attracts him to the occasion as well. He continued, "This game seems more exciting for everyone, which is probably why so many more people come to it. I have to say it is nice to see."

The royalty nominations were won by McHenry Choo and Daisy Maya as count and countess, Eric Beall and Sarah Risher as duke and duchess, Juan Lazcano and Angelica Carter as prince and princess, while Andrew Rodriguez and Elysia Sevilla attained the most coveted accolade of all, king and queen.

Judging by the crowd's reaction, it appeared as if these were everyone's favored choices, even to some neutrals, which only added more to the excitement and passion being shown by the students. The dance the following night was described as "a success." Given that the festivities were filled with jovial participation and unforgettable memories, calling this year's homecoming celebrations at River City High "a success" could be perceived as an understatement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Veterans snubbed

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter is by a West Sacramento veteran in response to a newsletter from the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8762. The newsletter said that the neighboring River Cities Funeral Chapel will begin charging $150-$500 for use of its parking lot by the VFW. For more from the chapel's point of view, see its ad on page two.)

This news was especially upsetting considering the fact that several years ago, Post 8762 spent a considerable amount of money to have the (chapel's) parking lot slurry-sealed and lines painted. This was done as appreciation for our use of the lot.

Post 8762 has:

Lent chairs to the chapel when they were short of seats;

Let the owner (Jon) use our post facilities for private parties at no charge;

Let people (who were nonmembers of our post) that attended funerals at the chapel use our post for fellowships – no charge, on many occasions.

We feel we have gone out of our way at Post 8762 to be good neighbors.

We guess this is the chapel's way of saying "thank you for your service!" to our local veterans.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Horrible Bosses" (R) -- When three friends share the same cup of sadness, it can be uplifting -- unless they're all sharing the desire to murder their bosses, then it's comedy gold. It may sound like dark and rocky territory for laughs, but it's expertly navigated by the freshly minted comedy trio of Jason Bateman, Charley Day and "Saturday Night Live" cast member Jason Sudeikis. Once they're all on-screen, it seems like simple comedy chemistry to get these three in the same room together.

The aforementioned maligned bosses also are well-cast, as Jennifer Aniston, Colin Farrel and Kevin Spacey are each hilariously hate-able. Now we can only hope that the trio who put in the hours will get the A-list promotion they each deserve.

"The Tree of Life" (R) -- Easily the most divisive movie of the summer, "The Tree of Life" is either a bold vision or a murky head-scratcher of a film. From the outside, it looks like a daddy-issue drama with Brad Pitt as the complicated Midwestern father and Sean Penn as the mixed-up grownup looking back on his upbringing. What audiences will get is a meditation on the nature of the universe -- from the beginning of time to the existential angst of modernity.

The scope of the film fluctuates from cosmic down to deeply personal, and the narrative skips through time at its own pace. Whether this makes "The Tree of Life" brilliant or just hard to follow, it's certainly not conventional storytelling. The film should be checked out with an open mind.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"Green Lantern" (PG-13) -- DC Comics' latest champion to step into the big-screen foray is the Green Lantern, a hero with alien powers derived from bravery and willpower. Cocky test pilot Hal Jordan (Ryan Reynolds) is the first human ever inducted into the intergalactic peacekeeping force know as the Green Lantern Corps. He's unique from a Superman or a Batman, so why does this superhero movie feel so ... familiar and unexciting?

Whatever the cause, "Green Lantern" feels like a bright green projection of wasted potential. Anyone who isn't a diehard comic fan might wonder what's the point in all this green silliness.

CULT CORNER

"Riki-Oh: The Story of Ricky" [Blu-ray] (Not rated) -- Ricky is an honest young martial artist who has never-quite-explained superhuman strength -- he doesn't punch criminals, he punches through them. In a prison owned and operated by an organized crime ring, it's up to him to solve problems with outlandish violence. In its first release on Blu-ray, adequately desensitized fans finally can soak in every drop of the absurdity.

Retro Casseroles

Everything old is new again! Retro fashions and furnishings are all the rage, so I thought it was time to bring back a retro casserole dish. A casserole describes both the container and the contents. Casseroles have been prepared since the earliest times and can be a savory or sweet dish.

Casseroles became popular in America during the Depression and grew in popularity into the 1940s. Then and now, in times of economic hardship, a casserole is the perfect way to feed a family on a budget. Cream of Mushroom Soup, was introduced in 1934 and became the "go-to" canned staple as a soup and sauce, especially in casseroles. Tuna Noodle Casserole was an old recipe popularized by the home economists at the Campbell Soup Company. The original recipe contained canned tuna (something that had been slow to gain popularity), egg noodles, hard-cooked eggs and slices of pimento cheese topped with cereal flakes that had been tossed with butter.

(In the 1950s, convenience was the main reason for the continuing popularity of casseroles. Modern cooks liked the ease of opening a few cans and packages to create a meal. In 1955, Campbell's popularized Green Bean Casserole containing Cream of Mushroom soup.. It continues to be a holiday favorite.

When I was a new bride and college student in 1975, casseroles were a great remedy for my woefully limited cooking skills and lack of time. Today, I consider casseroles the perfect dish for a budget-friendly meal, and a way to stock my freezer with crowd-pleasing dishes that can be easily re-heated in the microwave. This recipe for Chicken Cordon Bleu casserole is a 1960s retro casserole classic that will stand the test of time.

CHICKEN CORDON BLEU CASSEROLE

2 (6-ounce) packages long grain and wild rice mix
6 (about 2-1/2 pounds total) skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
6 very thin slices Black Forest ham or country ham
3 ounces Gruyere cheese, cut into 3 by 1/2 by 1/2-inch sticks, plus 1/2 cup (2 ounces) shredded Gruyere cheese for sprinkling
1 1/2 tablespoons poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/3 cup all-purpose flour, plus 2 tablespoons for the sauce
2 eggs, lightly beaten
2 tablespoons water
1-1/2 cups whole-wheat panko (Japanese-style bread crumbs)
1/4 cup vegetable oil
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms (baby bellos, shiittake, chanterelle, cremini or button)
1/4 cup sliced green onions, white and green parts
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups half-and-half or light cream

1. Preheat oven to 350 F. Prepare rice mixes according to package directions.
2. Meanwhile, prepare the chicken breasts. Starting from the thickest side of each chicken breast half, make a horizontal slit into, but not through, the other side. Wrap each stick of cheese in a slice of ham and insert it into a slit. Secure with wooden toothpicks. Sprinkle chicken on both sides with 1 tablespoon poultry seasoning, and 1/2 teaspoon salt and pepper.
3. Place flour and remaining 1/2 tablespoon poultry seasoning in a shallow dish, stir to combine. In a second shallow dish, combine eggs and water. Place the panko breadcrumbs and remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt and pepper and the cayenne pepper in a third shallow dish, stir to combine. Dip chicken in flour, shaking off excess; dip in egg, then in panko, turning and pressing chicken into the panko to coat.
4. In an extra-large skillet, heat 2 tablespoons oil over medium heat. Cook chicken, in batches, in the hot oil about 4 minutes or until brown on both sides; place the finished batch on a paper towel-covered plate. Add the remaining 2 tablespoons oil and continue to brown the second batch of chicken breasts. Place on the plate and remove toothpicks.
5. Using the same skillet, over medium high heat, add the butter. Cook mushrooms, green onions and garlic in the butter. Sprinkle with 1/2 tablespoon poultry seasoning and cook until tender, about 3 to 5 minutes. Stir in remaining 2 tablespoons of flour. Gradually stir in half-and-half. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Stir in shredded cheese until melted.
5. Spoon the sauce over rice, and place the chicken on top of sauce. Bake, covered, for 40 to 45 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink (170 F). Makes 6 servings.

"Judy: A Legendary Film Career"
by John Fricke
(Running Press, $30)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Seventy-five years ago this autumn, "Pigskin Parade," a film musical that featured a rather tired plot involving a college football game, opened in theaters around the country. The cast included Stuart Erwin, Betty Grable, comedian Patsy Kelly, singer Tony Martin and the Yacht Club Boys. Judy Garland also appeared in the film and was listed 10th --- or dead last --- on the promotional poster.

Although the film was not a major box-office hit, moviegoers did take notice of Garland and the incredible energy she brought to the screen. During the years that followed, she evolved to become one of the world's greatest entertainers. In addition to her film work, she was a frequent performer on network radio, a major talent at Decca records and did concert tours that brought her international fame.

John Fricke, winner of two Emmy Awards, has compiled a coffee table book that documents Garland's film work in unprecedented detail. His text is supplemented with more than 600 images, many published for the first time.

Most intriguing, however, are the film productions for which she was supposedly considered but for one reason or another failed to do. For example, one only has to look at the preproduction costume stills of "Annie Get Your Gun" to wonder what that movie would have been like if Garland had starred in it as originally planned instead of Betty Hutton.

John Fricke has compiled a fitting tribute that not only showcases Garland's film roles and achievements, but celebrates one of this country's brightest talents.

*The following examples of 100% financing of qualified retrofit projects under the CHF Residential Energy Retrofit Program are based on a 15-year, fixed-rate CHF Loan. The monthly payment on a $10,000, 15-year fixed-rate CHF Loan at 3.00% interest would be $69.06 and the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) would be 3.403%. The payment on a $10,000, 15-year fixed-rate CHF Loan at 0.00% interest would be $55.56 and the APR would be 0.372%. The only fees used to calculate the APR are the escrow fee and the loan processing fee. Title policy and recording fees are not included in the APR calculation.
